DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1 and 3-19 are pending in this application and have been examined in response to application amendment filed on 10/17/2007.
2. Claims 2 and 20 are canceled by the applicant.
3. Claims 1 and 3-19 have been allowed.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1 and 3-19 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The current application is directed to an apparatus and method for providing an input button for a computing or communication device. An input button is provided as a flattened shaped lying on and nearly flush with a surface of the computing or communication device so as to have an exposed surface for inserting an indicator instrument such as a stylus. The exposed surface is configured to detect force exerted on the input button via the indicator instrument, the exposed surface moves or deforms in response to the force applied by a user. Motion sensors are disposed on the input button. A rotational force or a force couple is detected by causing the indicator instrument simultaneously pushing down on one side and pushing up and away on an opposite side of the input button.

The closest prior art to the current application is Inukai (US 2001/0015720 A1) and Oueslati et al. (Oueslati, US 6,806,865 B2). Inukai discloses an exposed surface configured to detect force exerted on a input button via a indicator instrument. Oueslati further discloses the input button is laid flattened shaped on and nearly flash with a computing device. Neither Inukai or Oueslati suggests or discloses the detection of a rotational force or a force couple via simultaneously pushing down on one side and pushing up and away on an opposite side of the input button that would enhance the usability of a input device.

Any claims not directly addressed are allowed on virtue of their dependency. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
